A Waveland resident faces two counts of financial exploitation of vulnerable adults; according to Sheriff Steve Garber Garber said; "Susan S.

Calhoun of Waveland was arrested on Tuesday, following an investigation by sheriff's investigators and an investigator from the State Attorney General's office. Calhoun is allegedly charged with two counts of financial exploitation of vulnerable adult."

Calhoun's bond was set at $5,000 at the Hancock County Criminal Justice Facility, Garber stated.

Garber said, charges involved the misuse of credit cards and the personal finances of a 87-year-old vulnerable woman and her 47-year-old vulnerable son."

Persons convicted of felonious exploitation of a vulnerable adult can be sentenced up to 10 years in prison, according to Mississippi State Law.

State Law says: "....It shall be unlawful for any person to abuse, neglect, or exploit any vulnerable adult.

Waveland revives marina plan

BY BENNIE SHALLBETTER Staff Writer

Four years ago, due to public opposition, Waveland Aldermen permanently tabled talk about a marina project proposed for the foot of Coleman Avenue. When a new administration came aldermen approved a $10,000 feasibility study on the project. Tidelands funds paid for the study. Total cost for the project comes in at around $6 million.

Proponents say that local business owners and others are in support of the project. But on Monday, like four years ago, only opponents of the project stood up to be heard at a presentation of the study by Compton's geologist and planner Steve Oivanki.

Ward 3 Alderman Brian Schmidt said he initially supported the idea of the marina at the Coleman Ave. site but as he learned more about the project, he changed his mind. Now Schmidt says he thinks a more appropriate location would be near Buccaneer Park. If not there, than nowhere, said Schmidt. Oivanki said sea grass in the area of Buccaneer Park would prohibit marina construction. Local residents expressed concern about noise and traffic and the disruption of the now quiet area, valid concerns said Oivanki. The area would become an

During a catastrophic event pilings and other debris could come ashore, he said, but in that case damage along the coastal area would be severe

> Plans also call for a common area, about an acre and a half of green space that could be used for public gatherings. This won't just be a place to park boats. Oivanki said, but a place for many activities much like adjoining parks at marinas in San Diego or Ft. Lauderdale.

Activity at the marina should not interfere with fishing at the Garfield Ladner Pier, Oivanki said, because the easterly breakwater will be about 95 feet from the pier. The westerly breakwater will incorporate the small stone jetty which is home to the Veteran's Memorial. There are no plans to move the memorial.

These figures indicate that it would take about 25 to 30 years for the project to pay for itself, Oivanki said, less time if fuel and other sales were added into the equation.

To pay for the project Oiyanki recommended an additional sales tax specifically for that purpose. Initially the city would need to issue bonds, he said. Tidelands funds in the amounts needed would likely not become available, he said.

Mayor Tommy Longo said that he and aldermen would take time to go over the plans and discuss their options before making any decisions on going forward.

Slidell yacht beached in Bay St. Louis

BY JOHN WATERMAN Staff Writer

A yacht ran aground Friday night when its owner brought it in from the Gulf of Mexico due to inclement weather.

As of Wednesday morning, it was still there.

The vessel - a yacht out of Slidell named the Maria ran aground in Bay St. Louis on a stretch of beach between Washington St. Pier and Christ Episcopal Church.

The owner, who did not give his name, said he was sailing from Slidell to Florida when a storm forced him to head toward the shore.

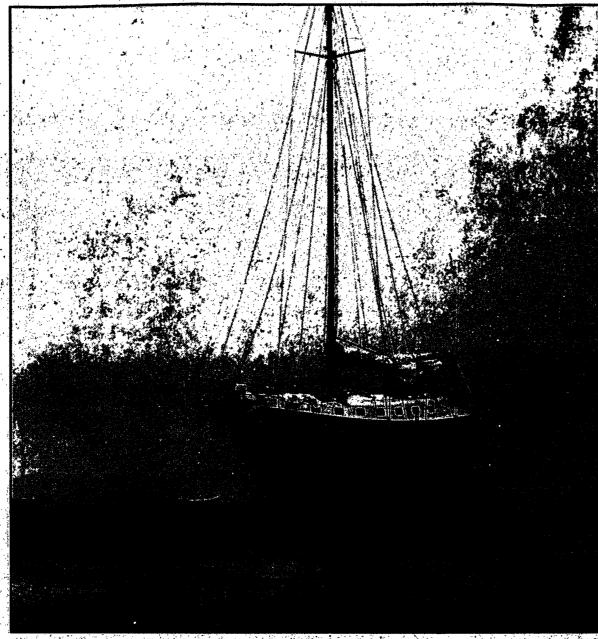

Laura Thompson, with the Department of Marine Resources, said the vessel was brought to DMR's attention soon after it ran aground. The Maria's owner did not request assistance.

"The Coast Guard called this into us on Friday. Our derelict vessel manager has already been in there to take a look at it," Thompson said.

Irvin Jackson, the DMR's derelict vessel program manager, said vessels had to be abandoned and sunk for 30 days before the DMR could move it. At this time, Jackson said, he did not know who the owner was.

Chris Lagarde, a member of Rep. Gene Taylor's staff said Taylor's office had received several calls about the boat from Bay St. Louis residents.

"I imagine there must be some sort of damage (to the

Barbour wants job-control Barbour wants to strip state employees their Personnel

Board due process protection relieve the state's budget crisis. Just for one year. Yeah. Just to save money, as Barbour says? Under his "Operation Streamline II" he says agency heads need more flexibility to slim down departtheir ments.

By Bill Minor What's wrong with them just using the RIF (reduction in workforce) authority they already have under the Personnel law when their budget is cut? Of course, under RIF, they have to go through Personnel Board due process.

What Barbour is talking about sounds more like old Theodore G. Bilbo to me. Bilbo, you may remember, was the bodacious two times governor noted for wholesale firing of state job-holders and replacing them with his political friends. He even chased off college administrators and professors to install his own people. That resulted in regional academic regulatory agencies blacklisting the higher state's learning institutions. Finally, Mississippians took measures to prevent another Bilbo political bloodbath. They wrote into the state Constitution the 1940s to insulate higher learning institutions from political interference.

Now comes Republican Haley Barbour, in the name of good government, advocating a job-control idea that smacks of a Bilbo-era spoils system.

Mississippi lawmakers have never been able to create a full-fledged civil service system, but nearly 30 years ago they gave state employees a significant measure of job protection under the state Personnel Board. A week ago in his "state of the state" address, Barbour sounded his call for removing state executive department agencies from Personnel Board "restrictions" and giving agency heads he appoints more leeway in hiring and firing.

Barbour last year made a

State College Board in the run at getting Legislature to take the hiring and firing of employees of seven executive department agencies out from under Personnel Board due process, but the Mississippi House blocked him, except for the Department of Corrections. But while lawmakers focused on stopping most of Barbour's job power-grab, they let slip through a measure labeled as part of his "work force training" crusade, abolishing the three-member Mississippi Employment Security Commission and essentially giving him control of the agency and its 850 employ-

AGE 5A

We are working fervently to review, discuss and debate all bills, so we can determine our course of action. If a bill is voted out of committee, it will be placed on our calendar to be introduced on the Senate floor. Any bill that is not approved and voted out of committee by the deadline will die. Bills that make it to the floor will then go through the scrutiny of all Senate members before est recorded payout in one coming to a vote.

Even with such a busy committee schedule, we did surplus and the restrictions have some activity on the floor. Since my last legislative update report, we approved Senate Bill 2480. This bill addresses the unemployment tax rate. Under the current law the unemployment tax rate would increase from 1.2% to 1.7% this year. However, as stands,

Unemployment Insurance

ing not the control of the section to be the control of the contro

Sen. Scottle Cuevas Reserve fund is at $684 mil-

There are two points to keep in mind. First, federal law prohibits any taxes collected for Unemployment Insurance Reserve fund from being used for general fund spending. Second, the highyear from this fund was $194 million. In light of the spending on Unemployment Insurance Reserve funds, we want to lower the minimum tax rates for 2005 from 1.7% to .9% and for 2006 and 2007 to .7%. These rates will remain over the next 5 years as long as the Unemployment Insurance Reserve fund holds at a secure pre-established level.

Mississippi employers could use the money they will save for measures like expanding business and hiring more employees.

In addition, S.B. 2480 commits $20 million per year to be used for workforce training. Offsetting funds for worker training is the only exception to the federal law regulating Unemployment Insurance Reserve fund spending. Workforce training is essential to the economic growth of our state. It broadens the workforce pool by increasing workers' skill levels and equates to higher pay for individuals.

Other work on the Senate floor included action on eight various appropriation bills. To highlight a few, S.B. 2429 provides funding for the Department of Public Safety for the support of a Highway Patrol Trooper Training Class for FY 2006. The shortage of Mississippi Highway Troopers is a growing concern. This bill seeks to head off the increasing shortage. S.B. 2547 removes the 98% budget limitation for FY2006. To paraphrase, current law states the total proposed expenditures cannot exceed 98% of revenue estimates for the following fiscal year. This bill would remove this limitation and reset the limit at 100%

More later about some serious new plans Barbour has for the state employment agency.

Barbour in his speech to the Legislature a week ago trumpeted that his strip-Corrections Department employees of Personnel Board protection has in one year paid off $15 million in budget savings from job cuts. What he did not say is that most of the job cuts had already taken place at Corrections under RIF before his bill had passed. Or that while the agency,s basic operating budget for next year shows a slight decrease, the price for keeping prisoners in private lockups is $10 million high-

The Barbour crowd in the Senate has set a job security trap in their version of the bill restoring the PLADs -- poverty level and disabled - group to Medicaid until next January.

PLADs, as well as block Barbour's renewed move to strip Personnel Board protection from state workers, A cloak has been thrown the Barbourites on the lations on all state agencies.

At least the bill had to also get. Appropriations fattened their salaries over Committee approval this week before reaching the floor, and some senators were said to have second thoughts about how much the job-stripping amendment would actually save.

Back to Barbour's new scheme for the state's employment security system: as predicted in this column last year, Barbour has his eye on the $650 million Unemployment Trust Fund from which out-of-work employee benefits are paid.

Rather than drain off a chunk of the trust fund to stanch the red ink in the state's general fund and also embellish his no-taxhike pledge, Barbour now contends the trust fund has too much money in it, and proposes lawmakers cut unemployment taxes paid into the fund by his business/industry friends.

Of course Barbour didn't consider the compassionate alternative: an increase in Mississippi's weekly unemployment benefits, which are the lowest in the country and have not been Knowing that the House raised in over four years.

corporate world, it is illegal for retirement funds to be used to cover debts.) The Bush Administration predicts a funding shortfall in 2042. The plan for private accounts would mean that less money goes into the fund to pay for benefits. This would mean that money must either be borrowed to pay benefits, or payroll taxes must go up, or benefits must be cut.

If the President is truly worried about our young people having enough money to retire, then why does he not advocate to cut programs that are unnecessary, pay off the nation's debt, and let Americans keep more of the money they will make.

Regardless of what we do, or how we do it, we need to start generating revenue in the Treasury to meet our obligations. As a conservative, that is what I feel will ultimately lead to economic prosperity. Making the government an investment vehicle seems to further entangle the government into the lives of citizens while creating a whole new bureaucracy for tax dollars to fund. The $7 trillion debt is already half of GDP and is getting larger every day. This debt will have to be paid, at some point, through Treasury revenue. If we want our children to invest more, then we should quit creating huge deferred tax obligations through excessive deficit spending and large government expansion.

It is true that the stock market is a symbol and function of our capitalist economy. It has created great wealth and opportunity for many Americans and I think it is safe to say that it will continue to do so, despite the cyclical downturns and occasional tumbles. Workers in America are already free to invest as they wish and I hope everyone is thinking of the future for family members and themselves. There are many ways for young people to save for retirement. Retirement savings vehicles such as 401k's, IRA's, mutual funds, and the like, are available to many workers through employers and the general financial industry. I do not feel that it is wise for us to disregard the historical events that brought about Social Security, as we discuss the future of the system. I hope that we can use this debate about Social Security as a way to steer attention towards the real problem facing our nation: Fiscal Irresponsibility.

Local school consolidation bill could have statewide impact

BY SHELIA BYRD Associated Press Writer

JACKSON, Miss. (AP) _A could be amended to include all districts in the state, Education Senate Chairman Mike Chaney

The Senate Education Committee passed a bill Tuesday that would authorize consolidation of the school district administrations of Biloxi, Gulfport, Long Beach, Pass Christian and Harrison County. Under the bill, a referendum would let voters decide the issue.

Sen. Billy Hewes, R-Gulfport, said consolidation would save money as the state grapples with a tight budget that could result in reduced education funding in the fiscal year that begins July 1.

Hewes said not everyone is pleased with the proposal.

Of the superintendents I talked with, it's a mixed opposed to being singled out," Hewes said. Some of them do not want to change the current system.

Chaney filed a similar bill to consolidate districts around the state, but didn't bring it up for a vote by committees to pass bills.

However, Chaney said bill to consolidate five public Hewes' bill could be amendschool districts on the ed when it comes up for a Mississippi Gulf Coast vote of the full Senate.

If senators want to take up any more consolidation. they'll have to do it through the amendment process or in conference committees," Chaney said.

At the committee meeting, Hewes distributed data showing the Harrison County consolidation would save more than $2.5 million in administrative costs each

The data compared what each district spends on salaries, fringe benefits, clerical support; supplies and travel.

Sen. Hob Bryan, D-Amory, who voted against the bill, questioned the estimated savings because there had been no study of how much it would cost to operate a larger district.

Bryan also said there's the possibility a district could be forced into consolibag. Generally, they would dation. For example, the favor an overall state con- Pass Christian district solidation consideration, as could be outvoted by the larger Harrison County dis-

Casino revenues have remained steady in Mississippi since 2000; rank 3rd in nation

JACKSON, Miss. (AP) There's been nothing spectacular about the singledigit growth in Mississippi's casino industry over past

But nothing will compare to a year like 1994 when 11 casinos opened in one year. Regulators and industry insiders believe gaming operators in Mississippi are continuing on a long and profitable run that began when the first gambling house opened in 1992.

Larry Gregory, executive director of the Mississippi Gaming Commission, said the casino business is poised to make a jump with two casinos to open on the Gulf Coast this year and as many as eight others in the wings.

OLA & SSC battle elements and opponents to make title game

BY JOSEPH W. GEX II Staff Writer

In the frigid wind and rain at the Brother Phillip Memorial Athletic Complex, the Our Lady Academy Crescents defeated St. Andrews of Jackson 2-1 for the Class 1A-2A-3A South State championship on Tuesday evening.

The win has the Crescents (19-5-2) poised for a shot at an unprecedented sixth consecutive state soccer title. In a game that mirrored the conditions of last year's state title game, OLA managed to come from a 1-0 deficit at halftime to claim the 2-1 victory.

With about 19 minutes remaining in the second half, St. Andrews missed an opportunity to go up 2-0 on the Crescents when a breakaway brought Annie Giardino out of the goal. She was unable to keep her footing in the muck and mud; however, the shot by the St. Andrews' forward hit the pole and bounced back out. About seven minutes later following an injury timeout, Lauren Rittner netted the tying goal for OLA to make the score 1-1.

With the Crescents' new life, OLA went on the offensive. Six minutes later,

9th grade SSC Rock-a-chaws claim Mid Coast Athletic Conference title

BY JOSEPH W. GEX II Staff Writer

The St. Stanislaus Rocka-chaws' ninth grade basketball team claimed the Mid Coast Athletic Conference basketball championship with a thrilling 34-31 win over George County on Thursday, January 27th.

The loss by George County is the first loss for this group of junior high Rebels since last losing to the Rocks in the seventh grade. SSC ninth grade head coach Kelton Thompson stated, "There is not one individual on this team that is a star but as a group they have great chemistry on the court." Brian Rice, a ninth grade guard on the team stated, "We played very hard defense which is something that we pride ourselves in. We do not have an offensive weapon to speak about so we have to work very hard on defense. We need to improve our execution to become more of a threat on both sides of the ball. Coach (Kelton) Thompson is a great coach and he works us very hard. The Sunday 6 p.m. practices are fun for everyone but the team members: however, they have paid off for us."

SSC head varsity coach Jay Ladner was on site to view the ninth grade tour-

Over the course of his 15year career, the Georgian has delighted fans and disarmed critics by exploring his deep love of hardcore country, flashing an ability and affinity for bluegrass, revealing unexpected sensitivity as a balladeer, winning respect as a formidable songwriter and, most emphatically, drawing widespread recognition as one of the finest vocalists the genre has ever known.

Born and raised in Marietta, Georgia, Tritt was an early and eager student of music, picking up guitar at age eight, singing in his church youth choir and playing in bluegrass, rock and country bands through history started when he applied his blue-collar work ethic to the diverse sounds of Southern popular music.
